

Roosevelt Calls Aides To White House Tonight To Study Farm Bill Tax

Congressional and Treasury Leaders are Among Those Called on 500-Million Financing; No Guesses on Schedules.

NEW MONEY

Morgenthau Announces March 15 Financing Will Include 800 Millions Newly Borrowed.

Washington, Feb. 27 (P).—Congressional and treasury leaders were summoned to the White House tonight for general discussions of tax legislation to finance the $500,000,000 farm program.

Those invited by President Roosevelt were Vice President Garner, Speaker Byrns, Secretary Morgenthau, Senator Barkley (D., Ky.), Senator Harrison (D., Miss.), chairman of the Senate finance committee; Representative Doughton (D., N. C.), chairman of the House ways and means committee; Representative Bankhead of Alabama, the Democratic leader, and Herman Oliphant, of the treasury counsel.

On Capitol Hill, none of the leadership was willing to hazard a guess as to whether the administration's tax recommendations might embrace any schedules beyond those needed to finance the new farm program, for which President Roosevelt has said $100,000,000 would be needed.

Into all speculation, however, there entered the Chief Executive's warning that new taxes would be required for appropriations which are not covered in the budget estimates.

This raised the question of whether a forthcoming tax measure would include provision for levies to cover at least a portion of the more than $2,000,000,000 which must be paid out for the soldiers' bonus, ordered by Congress over the President's veto.

The President in his veto yesterday of the bill to provide $50,000,000 for seed loans objected that the measure had been approved in Congress "without making provision for any revenue to cover such loans."

While preparations went ahead for the conference, suggested last week by the President, Representative Taber (R-N.Y.) declared there was an "absolute necessity" for raising taxes, and that "never in all history has there been a situation where the President has so failed to meet his responsibilities."

Many leaders, however, continued to express the view that a suggested tax program would be limited to financing the new $500,000,000 soil conservation program, and replacing revenues lost with the outlaying of the AAA processing tax.

$800,000,000 in New Money.
Secretary Morgenthau announced today the treasury March 15 financing will aggregate $1,800,000,000, of which $800,000,000 will be new cash borrowed to meet government costs.

In cash, the treasury will ask $1,250,000,000. This will supply the $800,000,000 of new money, and $450,000,000 to pay off in cash that amounts of bills maturing March 15. The remainder of the financing will represent refunding operations involving $559,000,000 of notes which mature April 15.

Morgenthau said his advisors had told him the "immediate needs" of the department would amount to about $800,000,000, the amount of the new money sought. All items of expenditure were figured in the estimates, he said, including the soldiers' bonus.

"We are getting our house in order to handle the bonus as expeditiously as possible," Morgenthau said.

The bills which mature March 15 carried no conversion rights, Morgenthau said, as he considered it no good fiscal policy to give holders of such short-term paper the right of conversion.

Morgenthau would not indicate the nature of the paper to be offered in exchange for the notes which mature next April. Nor would he discuss details of the financing which will be made public next Monday. The new issues will be dated March 5.

Power Employees Strike
El Paso, Tex., Feb. 27 (AP).—A walkout of power company employees at 1:57 a. m. today left El Paso and surrounding territory in Texas and New Mexico without electricity.

The walkout, the second in several months, halted street cars, stopped many industrial operations and left some plants without electric light or heat. Some plants were operating on auxiliary power generators. Appeals were made immediately to governors of both New Mexico and Texas for aid.

Bills Would Restrict Licenses to Foreigners Of Medical Profession

Albany, Feb. 27 (Special).—Two measures by Assemblyman J. Edward Conway were introduced this morning to restrict licenses from being issued to foreigners of the medical profession.

One bill, sponsored at the request of the Ulster County Medical Association, provides that no license shall be issued for the practice of medicine to a person who is not a citizen of the United States.

The other, requested by the New York State Medical Association, has in its provisions that no license shall be issued in this state without examination unless the applicant shall have graduated from a medical school or college registered as maintaining at the time of graduation a standard satisfactory to the Department of Education.

Mr. Conway asserted that these two measures are to restrict the issuance of licenses so that natives of New York will have first preference in securing positions in the medical profession.

Republicans Move for Sweeping State Probe To Find Relief Causes

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 27 (P).—The Republican leadership in the New York Assembly moved today, in the wake of developments at public hearings, to seek legislative authorization for a sweeping and immediate investigation to find the causes for the need of relief in the state.

In an unexpected move, Assemblyman James J. Wadsworth, Livingston Republican and chairman of the Assembly relief committee, reported favorably the Brownell bill. This proposes such an inquiry and calls for the findings to be made to the legislature "as quickly as possible."

The measure was moved immediately to the order of final passage, making action possible next Monday night or Tuesday.

The proposed investigation would be made by a committee composed of members of the relief committees of both Senate and Assembly and officials of the State Temporary Emergency relief administration.

Governor Herbert H. Lehman has proposed such an inquiry, but seeks to have it undertaken by a committee composed of the four legislative leaders and four persons appointed by himself. A bill carrying out his recommendations is now before the legislature.

As a result of the differences as to the method of conducting the investigation, the Democratic-controlled Senate is considered likely to defeat the Republican proposal in event it is approved in the Assembly. Republican leaders frankly admit that they will make the relief situation in President Roosevelt's home state a major issue in the forthcoming campaign.

Coinciding with the move to seek authority for a relief investigation, the Assembly relief committee also reported favorably to the floor a bill to reduce old age pension requirements from 70 to 65 years.

The relief inquiry proposal came less than 24 hours after conclusion of two public hearings at which relief officials, industrialists and business men appeared to give their views.

Patty Berg Wins

Ormond Beach, Fla., Feb. 27 (AP).—Red-haired 18-year-old Patty Berg of Minneapolis today defeated Hilda Mae Livensood, the 17-year-old Illinois state champion, 5 and 3 in the quarter-finals of the annual South Atlantic Golf Tournament.

February Thaw and Rain Envelop City

The February thaw of Tuesday and Wednesday continued today and early this morning a rain storm broke over the city. The rain and thaw is making deep inroads into the piles of snow that line the streets and as but few gutters are open pedestrians are finding walking difficult as the melting snow is forming large puddles of water on sidewalks and in the streets.

With snow piled in front of houses from 4 to 6 feet in height but few residents have made an attempt to dig open the gutters in front of their houses, and as a result the water from the melting snow has no way to run off into the sewers and then to a depth of several inches on many sidewalks.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 27 (P).—Lester W. Hertzog, upstate works progress administrator, announced today that the WPA is organizing for immediate remedial action in the event serious high water damage results from seasonal thaws.

Hertzog said he had no reports of high water conditions, but on advice from the federal administration was clearing the way for the WPA to furnish labor for cleanup work if any damage occurs.

Ice jams in several rivers in the state meanwhile moved slowly. Rivers generally were reported above normal but no immediate danger threatened.

Hertzog said a blanket project would be set up whereby WPA district directors could act immediately in supplying necessary labor without waiting for federal approval.

An ice jam in Tonawanda creek near Batavia was dynamited last night and the creek waters promptly dropped from ten feet to eight feet above normal.

In the Allegheny river an ice jam almost a mile long began to move slowly at 4 a. m. It carried away a second jam below the city of Salamanca. Both ice packs later piled up in a two-mile jam between Red House and Cold Spring where there was little likelihood of damage.

The Steuben county highway department dynamited ice jams between Addison and Hornell in the Canisteo river.

The Susquehanna river at Blenheim rose four inches during the past 24 hours and the ice showed no signs of moving.

Rain fell at Albany, but the Hudson river's covering of ice remained unbroken.

Subzero Returns

Chicago, Feb. 27 (P).—Subzero returned to the north central states today and a new cold wave was forecast bringing heavy precipitation and high winds.

Residents of states threatened by floods which have caused several drownings and much property damage hoped the return of freezing weather might bring relief from ice jams and rising flood waters.

A ten-foot wall of ice and water boring through Oil Creek Valley above Oil City, Pa., snatched 18-month-old Naomi Melling from the arms of her frantic grandmother.

Near Morgantown, W. Va., swollen Scotts Run previously had claimed the life of 6-year-old Dorothy Salt, negro.

A houseboat rode the ice down the Ohio river below Pittsburgh and police feared Clarence Mason, the owner, must be aboard.

Throughout western Pennsylvania towns and homes were flooded as gorges after gorges let go. Most of the smaller streams were receding today.

Another flood death, Ohio's first of the season, was reported from Newton Falls where Donald Musser, 12, was drowned in the Mahoning river. A Michigan woman died of a heart attack while bucking a blizzard at Gladstone.

Heavy snow falls paralyzed parts of northern Michigan, southern Minnesota and eastern North Dakota. The mercury stood at -8 degrees in Dickinson, N. D.

After unofficial estimates of $1,500,000 damage in California, flood waters were reported receding. Many rivers continued to overflow in Indiana and Ohio, where roads were closed and many reported fleeing from their homes. Four persons were missing in a snowslide near Wallace, Ida.

In Washington where the temperature reached 56 yesterday, the authorities watched possibility of flood conditions along the Potomac river.

4 Believed Dead

Wallace, Idaho, Feb. 27 (P).—Four missing persons were believed dead today, buried under tons of snow that roared down Couer d'Alene Mountain and swept a railroad passenger coach to the bottom of a debris-littered canyon.

The avalanche slid down the steep mountainside at dusk yesterday and ripped the coach from the rear of a two-car Branch Line train.

The tragedy occurred about 200 miles east of Sequim, Wash. in the Cascades, where three persons were killed in a snowslide Sunday. A rescue crew of 25 found two injured passengers in the wreckage of the splintered car.

Harry Olson Wallace, truck driver, saw the snowslide, break loose and start its plunge down the slope. "I heard the deafening roar of the slide," he said.

"I jumped out of my truck and ran. The avalanche just touched the truck as it went by. It looked like a whole mountainide. Trees and debris were whirled along in the snow."

The blizzard in which the catastrophe occurred added 15 inches of snow to more than 10 feet already piled in the mountains.

Gannett is Ohio 'Second' Choice as Running Mate For Borah in Primaries

Borah Expresses High Opinion of Rochester Publisher; Does Not Mean Vice-Presidential Candidacy for New Yorker.

"GREAT SACRIFICE"

Gannett Sees Borah Only Party Member to Recover Upstate New York Vote.

Washington, Feb. 27 (P).—The forces of Senator Borah of Idaho rolled on toward the primary skirmish grounds of Ohio today, equipped with the required "second choice" for the Republican presidential nomination.

Frank E. Gannett of Rochester, N. Y., publisher of a chain of newspapers, will fight alongside the Senate veteran for the 52 delegates the Buckeye State will send to the Cleveland convention.

Informing that his Ohio forces had selected Gannett, Borah said: "I have a very high opinion of Mr. Gannett. I think it is a most admirable choice."

Prior to the announcement at Columbus last night, there had not been a hint of the identity of the man who, as required by Ohio law, would be selected to receive the votes of any Ohio delegates pledged to Borah should the latter be blocked in convention. The "second choice" rule does not mean the selected person would be vice presidential candidate.

Gannett has been a strong supporter of the Idahoan.

Representatives of John Knight, a Borah leader in Ohio, in announcing Gannett's acceptance, released a statement from him in which he said it would mean "a great sacrifice."

At his winter home in Miami Beach, Fla., Gannett declared he had been persuaded to have his name on the ballot only after a long talk with Senator Borah in which he convinced him of his deep sincerity and his determination to make a vigorous fight for the nomination.

The publisher has expressed the belief that Borah is the only member of the party "most likely to recover the upstate New York vote."

The Republican state central committee of Ohio was in session today to decide whether it would support some potential candidate. It must do either that or follow its original plan of putting an uninstructed delegation in the field.

While the Republican pre-convention activity speeded up, the G. O. P. was assailed in Chicago by Secretary Ickes as "cold-blooded exploiters" of the negro.

In an address before the Chicago Urban League, an inter-racial organization to aid negroes, Ickes declared:

"During political campaigns the Republicans were the solicitous friends of the race, but between campaigns it was a different matter; then the economic exploiter could have his will with the negro."

Breaks Lifelong Precedent

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 27 (P).—Although frequently mentioned as a possible candidate for high office, Frank E. Gannett broke a lifelong precedent when he accepted the alternate designation with Senator Borah as a candidate for the presidency in the Ohio primary.

The publisher of 19 newspapers made it clear in a statement that his acceptance did not mean he was an active seeker for the nation's highest office but took that method to show his strong endorsement of Senator Borah.

Despite a keen interest in national politics, the publisher has invariably stated his interest was solely in getting out newspapers when questioned regarding his possible candidacy for public office.

Gannett said that when his name appears on the ballot with Senator Borah it will be only as a result of his interest in the Idahoan's campaign and to satisfy the technicality in the election law requiring an alternate candidate.

He has called the senator the "strongest candidate in the field."

Congress Takes Japanese Events Calmly, Watches for Expansion

Resentment Spreads Against N. Y. C. Plans To Eliminate Crossing

Correcting an impression gained at the public hearing on the elimination of the Broadway crossing through an underpass, designed by the New York Central railroad, Mayor Heiseleman said today that he was of the impression that the Public Service Commission had not approved the present plan, but had simply offered it to the city for consideration. The mayor said he believed the commission was settled on one thing, that the roadway would have to be depressed rather than the railroad tracks, but the plans for such a project had not been finally approved. He said that the city had the right to study the proposed plan of the railroad, and that the city's action would carry weight in the final decision of the commission.

Asked about the re-routing plan, the mayor stated that it was an excellent idea, if the cost would not be too great and a feasible right of way could be acquired for the railroad. This plan would detour the main tracks around the city, eliminating the Broadway and Saugerties road crossings entirely.

City Clerk Dempsey was also of the opinion that the re-routing would be the solution if the cost would not be excessive.

Argument against the present proposed plan of the railroad grew today with new ideas why the plan is not feasible. It was pointed out that the city hook and ladder fire truck carried a man high on the rear for the rear wheel steering and that if snow and ice clogged the underpass it was suggested the rider would have to duck or get hit. Opposition was also made on the grounds that if a fire occurred at the present railroad station or in that vicinity the fire trucks would have to do some intricate and complicated maneuvering to turn into the street where the fire was located.

It was further pointed out that under the New York Central plan values of properties near the underpass would drop and consequently taxes levied against these properties would necessarily have to be reduced an estimated $20,000 per year, a permanent loss to the city.

So far those asked for an opinion have failed to express any enthusiasm for the New York Central plan. Others asked for statements answered as follows:

Sam Borstein, Wall street clothier: "I think the Broadway crossing should be eliminated but I don't see why the railroad should not depress its tracks rather than hurt all of the business people on the street. Something should be done in that locality, the station is and has been a disgrace to the town for years. Not only is it antiquated but it is dirty. Many smaller towns have modern, clean stations for the traveling public. This change should be considered with any elimination plan."

Alderman Jacob H. Tremper: "The way I feel about elimination of the Broadway crossing is that the present plan is not acceptable. I say

Military Insurgents File Back to Barracks and Will Retain Their Arms. Escaping Dishonor of Being Disarmed.

OKADA'S RITES

Premier Said to Have Been Buried in Simple Ceremonies; Grew Extends Condolences.

By GLENN BABB

(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press)
Tokyo, Feb. 28 (Friday).—After two days of the gravest crisis in a generation, Tokyo slept easier in the early hours today, confident that sunrise would find the rebel soldiers who assassinated four government dignitaries Wednesday back in their barracks.

They capitulated last night to a government request that they quit police headquarters where they had barricaded themselves in defiance of loyal troops.

The threat of bloodshed in the capital's streets was averted.

Ranking military authorities said they were confident that danger was past since, under an arrangement between the rebels and the war office, the former promised to return to their barracks. They will retain their arms, thereby escaping the dishonor of being disarmed.

The insurgents began the evacuation of the buildings they occupied during the darkness before midnight. That quarter of the city was shut off from all outside observers, behind soldiers armed with rifles and fixed bayonets.

The rebels were stated to be leaving their captured stronghold to return to their own barracks.

The capitulation was said by the official source to have followed the mediation of high military authorities on behalf of the national government. These authorities prevailed upon the insurgents to accept peace terms to avert bloodshed.

The Imperial Palace was silent behind military barricades of soldiers and loose rolls of barbed wire. Only an occasional automobile, bearing a statesman or a high army officer to the negotiations was admitted to the palace grounds.

With snow clinging to the hoary stone walls rising from the broad moats and topped with ancient, fantastically gnarled pines, the palace enclosure looked like a Japanese print of a medieval scene, far removed from the 20th century political and military crisis.

Surviving leaders of the empire, members of the cabinet of the assassinated Premier Katsuko Okada, supreme war councilors and other high military leaders, convened at Hirohito's palace to select a new premier.

Leader is Sought

The search by princes, ministers and the highest military for a successor to the slain Premier Okada continued throughout the day, the conferees declaring they intended to remain in the palace until a new regime was named.

The fact that Admiral Kanji Kato, retired former chief of the navy general staff, joined the deliberations this afternoon with the supreme war council was interpreted to mean ultra-nationalist views were prevailing in strong support of Kato, a leader of the ultra-patriotic faction of the navy.

Others mentioned as possibilities for the premiership were Prince Naruhiko Higashikuni, a member of the supreme war council, and Prince Fumimaro Konoye.

Previous to their capitulation, the rebels, with "direct action" party members, had withdrawn from some of their formerly held positions before the threat of the loyal troops of Lieutenant General Hiroki Kashi, commander of the Tokyo garrison, and the men entrusted with the enforcement of martial law in the city of Tokyo.

Prince Was Factor

Prince Chichibu, the eldest of the emperor's three brothers, was authoritatively credited with being one of the chief reasons that the rebels were in the palace known personally by many of the rebels, made a long train trip from Adachi prefecture to take part in negotiations.

The prince, from 1926 to 1932, served as a captain in the Third Infantry Regiment to which the majority of the rebels belong. He now is a major.

The agreement with the rebels was understood to leave the question of their punishment for future negotiation.

An authority stated that the rebels had agreed to dissolve their revolutionary organization and to submit at once to the order of their military commanders. They must be back in barracks by 4 a. m. Friday and, in the meantime, are permitted to retain their arms.

Among the first to have been said to be those who had occupied the residence of the late Premier was

A jury of farmers and merchants acquitted the defense contention that brutality and improper advances made to her by her father, John W. Willis, upset her mentality and that she was insane when she shot him to death as he slept last December 21.

"I don't feel any different than I did before they said I was insane," she said.

CAPITAL NEWS

HOLLISTER (TUGGAS, Jr.)

Albany, Feb. 27 (Special).—What did you do to justify the expenditure of the $25,000 appropriated for the commission?" queried Senator Thomas C. Desmond, of Newburgh.

This question was fired at Senator Frank B. Hendel, Democrat of Queens, who was asking for an additional $5,000 to finish out the work of a commission of which he was chairman to investigate barge canals.

The Newburgh senator sharply criticized the gentleman from Queens and declared it "was time to call a halt to the spending of people's money for useless commissions."

Hendel assured the gentleman from Orange county that in the report due in a few weeks all questions would be answered, and in defense of charges made he added that the commission members had met and that it had accomplished some thing and that the money was not used by attaches of the commission for spending purposes.

Desmond is not, in our opinion, always one hundred per cent right, and such was the case yesterday, for his was the only dissenting vote.

Yet he takes his legislative duties with as much dexterity as any member of either house. So much so, in fact, that he fairly admitted yesterday that he could not keep track of virtually every piece of legislation that comes before the house.

Mr. Desmond is the proverbial fly in the ointment of either his own party or of the Democrats.

If he thinks a bill is bad and it has the support of his party he not only says so but uses his vote to protest.

At the opening of this year's session he blocked momentarily immediate passage of a bill by failing to give unanimous consent, which the law required for special action, and recesses had to be called to get around a technicality that Desmond chose to use to advantage.

He refuses to be rushed on anything that he does not understand. The senator employs his own staff to assist him in his pet interest: county reform and the home rule amendment. His correspondence on this matter alone is some 50 letters a day.

Telephone Official Explains Service in Address at Rotary

The simple gesture of reaching for the telephone and calling a friend around the corner communicating with persons in other states, other nations or at sea, all in a matter of minutes, is something civilized people take for granted, explained B. K. Rhoads to the members and guests in session at the Rotary luncheon in the Governor Clinton Hotel yesterday noon. It is such an ordinary procedure and so quickly executed that people fail to realize how much detail goes into the completion of each call, what a vast plant is required to make such contacts possible, and how working unseen, a quarter of a million men and women give the telephone user swift and efficient service no matter where he desires to make his call.

Protestant Churches Plan Lenten Services

Beginning this evening, and running through the first two weeks of Lent, the Protestant Churches of the city will have a significant series of union services, conducted under the auspices of the Ministerial Societies and the Federation of Men's Clubs.

Tonight's gathering, already announced, will bring Dr. James Myers of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ, to the Clinton Avenue Methodist Church in a city-wide Lenten service.

Tomorrow afternoon, in a united service, the "World Day of Prayer" for Missions will be observed in the Franklin Street A. M. E. Church, with the women of the Missionary Societies of the city in charge.

At the First Dutch Reformed Church at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night the up-town churches will unite in a service sponsored and conducted by the Federation of Men's Clubs with Chester Smith of Peekskill as the speaker. Mr. Smith is one of the most alert laymen in the New York Conference of the Methodist Church.

During the coming week from March 3 to 6 the up-town Churches will continue, in united worship, in a series of services dealing with the general subject "The New Type of Humanity." Beginning Tuesday night the services will be held on successive nights in the following churches in this order: St. James Methodist, First Presbyterian, First Baptist, and Fair Street Reformed.

Continuing downtown, the churches will unite in a "Men's Federation" sponsored meeting on Sunday, March 8 in the Wurts Street Baptist Church, and then the following week, Tuesday to Friday, there will be a series of downtown united services, the details of which will be announced later.

Thus, beginning tonight with the city-wide "James Myers" meeting at Clinton Avenue Church and continuing through March 13, the Protestant Churches will begin the Lenten season with an impressive united devotion. Everyone is cordially invited to these services.

Esopus Turkey Supper The Ladies' Aid Society of the Esopus M. E. Church will serve a turkey supper in the church parlor Wednesday evening, March 4, from 5:30 o'clock until all are served. Menu as follows: Roast turkey, mashed potatoes, creamed onions, peas, dressing, salad, cranberry sauce, brown and white bread, apple pie and coffee.

pany. The speaker cited several examples of this whereby employees of the telephone company sacrificed their lives in the interests of public responsibility. In one instance, a woman operator in the southwest stayed by her switchboard calling people in the surrounding community as to the danger of a rising flood. She stayed by her post and died in the flood to save numberless lives.

Mr. Rhoads gave several examples of this enviable record of duty when fires and flood ravaged various sections of the nation. The more recent gas explosion in Utica was but another sample of this, explained the speaker, for he was an eye witness to the remarkable work the service men of the telephone company did to repair broken and blasted communication lines despite the danger and the below zero weather in which they were forced to labor.

Mr. Rhoads also stated that the telephone system in the United States is the most efficient in the world and he said that it would continue to improve, not so much from the standpoint of more elaborate and scientific equipment but through the loyalty of the men and women who make up the system.

PROCESSING TAXES

That $200,000,000 of AAA processing payments which the Supreme Court ordered returned to the processors is quite a problem. It was returned on the ground that its payment was unlawful, and the court tied no strings to it. Thus the processors generally assumed that the money was theirs, to use as they pleased, and many propose using it to expand their plants, or for advertising. Many critics, however, immediately declared that such action would be a "steal," because the processors in most cases had not paid the tax themselves but had passed it on to their customers in higher prices.

These customers as a rule were not ultimate consumers but middlemen, and in many cases the middlemen are clamoring that the money rightly belongs to them. So the processors in some cases are planning to turn over the disputed funds to them, or divide with them. But this doesn't really settle the problem, for the middlemen in many cases have passed on the charges to the ultimate consumers, and the latter are beginning to clamor for a rebate. The only clear fact about the whole matter is that, in various ways, directly and indirectly, this big sum is going to fertilize business and help along the expansion now under way.

RAILROAD PROSPERITY

The railroads are prospering again, after being hit as hard as any American industry. From net earnings of $896,000,000 in 1929, they sank to an aggregate deficit of $139,000,000 in 1932, a total drop of more than a billion dollars a year in earning power. Then came a slow climb, with diminishing deficits in 1933 and 1934, until last year the industry as a whole was able to cover fixed charges with $134,000,000 surplus. And from all present indications it should do much better this year.

It is a familiar saying that when the railroads prosper, the country prospers. This should be particularly true now, for the railroads need vast quantities of rolling stock, rails and other "heavy steel" products, and as they begin to place orders they stimulate the basic manufacturing industries. And that, in turn, provides new business for the railroads. It looked for a while as if the government might have to take over the railroads to keep them running. Now that threat is evidently postponed at least for several years. The railroads are going to have another chance under private ownership and management. And from present indications—what with bold experiments with new types of trains and other forms of modernization—there are making good use of it.

CONSCRIPTING EMIGRANTS

England once stirred up a heap of trouble in this country, and invited enduring enmity against herself, by insisting on the principle of "once an Englishman, always an Englishman." Now Germany is trying it, and as a result will soon be "in worse" with the world, including the United States, than she is already.

A new order of the Nazi government requires all Germans, no matter where they live, to register for state labor and military service. The rule applies not only to German citizens living at home and abroad, but to Germans who have become citizens of other countries. There are many such in the United States and other countries, including Germany's neighbors.

The Nazi government cannot enter other countries and drag their naturalized citizens of German birth back to Germany for this conscription service. But it can hold the order over their heads, and "crack down on them" if they ever return to the fatherland for any purpose. Thus it amounts to permanent blackmail.

ment for all who disregard it. The Nazi government no doubt has accomplished some good things for Germany, but it has a positive genius for making enemies in countries where it needs friends.

EDUCATIONAL GRUB

High school and college students have always been regarded as ignorant of food values and prone to feed on all sorts of indigestible junk. But apparently they are changing. The operator of a restaurant in one of the scientific colleges is much impressed by the men's choice of food. They eat more green stuff, he says, than their predecessors did. Evidently they've learned something about vitamins. And believe it or not, whether they have got the idea from Mother, or from physiological study, or from Pop-Eye, their favorite green vegetable is spinach.

When working for exams or any other form of extra study, they turn to a football training table diet, choosing such "athletic meals" as a steak or chop with baked potato and tea, passing up all fancy, starchy or sweet dishes. Evidently they have got the idea that food which is good for physical energy is also good for mental energy, and that anything which makes extra work for the stomach is good for neither.

That Body of Yours

ABNORMAL GROWTH

"An elephant is larger than a mouse because the cells of which it is composed have the power of multiplying its units for a longer period or more continuously. The body cells of the elephant are not any larger than those of the mouse."

"When a cell divides in two the two cells are of course only half the size of a regular or mature cell but these half size cells grow until they are as large as the regular or mature cell and then grow no larger."

I am quoting Dr. William Boyd, Winnipeg, Manitoba, from an address to the American Medical Association some months ago.

Naturally a cell that is dividing cannot be working at the same time and so apparently while some cells of an organ are dividing, the other cells are doing the regular work of that organ.

There are various factors that appear to control the rate of growth and the degree of growth—the thyroid and other glands, and the vitamins in foods. However, Dr. Boyd points out that there is some principle which for a better name may be called the vital spark which enables living matter to dip down into the dead stuff of the earth or stuff up into its own living flesh. By using the energy made from this dead matter each cell is able to divide into two, which then grow to maturity, divide again, and so on.

Thus it is thought that in cancer the cells of the organ "go on," neither "do they spin" but spend all their time in dividing and dividing, thus multiplying and increasing to such great numbers that this "great growth" becomes a bad or malignant growth—a cancer.

When it is learned why some tissues do not work but just multiply and grow, and grow very rapidly, the cause of cancer will be known.

In other words cancer cells are just normal cells that do not grow in the regular order or at the regular rate. Something that should control growth is absent and the cells of the part with nothing to regulate or slow up the rate at which they grow, grow too abundantly and form an "abnormal" growth—a cancer.

If fireplaces are made for heat and not just as pleasant features of all ready well heated rooms, they should not be so deep and the sides should not be at a fairly wide angle to reflect the heat out into the room and not just across to the other wall of the fireplace. A shallow fireplace will draw perfectly if it is properly built. The damper, if one is used, must be the full width of the fireplace; there must be a smoke shelf above the damper; there must be adequate and symmetrical smoke chamber; the first tile of the flue must be set directly over the combustion of the grate. Then if the flue has a clear area of at least 100 per cent of the fireplace opening the shallow fireplace will draw.

THE BOOMERANG CLUB

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE
 SYNOPSIS: It looks as if "Frankie" and Bobby Jones were much as if Dr. Nicholson is the murderer of Alan Cartwright, and if they are not as his trial. But Bobby has disappeared, while re-considering the Nicholson drug cure, and Frankie is desperate until she receives a letter from him, saying that she must come at once to Tudor cottage, Chipping Somerton. The letter also says she must not bring her large and expensive car, and must tell no one where she is going.

Chapter 27
CHLOROFORM

"ANYTHING interesting in your letter?" Roger inquired casually.

For a moment Frankie hesitated. Surely Bobby had not meant Roger when he adjured her to tell nobody?

Then she remembered the heavy underlining—remembered, too, her own recent monstrous idea. If that were true, Roger might betray them both in his innocence.

"No," she said. "Nothing at all."

She was to repent her decision bitterly before twenty-four hours had passed.

More than once in the course of the next few hours did she regret Bobby's dictum that the car was not to be used. Chipping Somerton was no very great distance as the crow flies, but the journey involved changing three times, with a long, dreary wait at a country station each time, and to one of Frankie's impatient temperaments this slow method of procedure was extremely hard to endure with fortitude.

It was getting dark when Frankie's train, an extremely deliberate and thoughtful train, drew into the little station of Chipping Somerton. It was just beginning to rain, too, which was additionally trying.

Bobby's directions were quite easy to follow. Frankie saw the lights of the village ahead and turned off to the left up a lane which led steeply up hill. Presently she saw the little cluster of houses that formed the village lying below her and came to a neat wooden gate with "Tudor Cottage" written on it.

The door of the cottage opened and she saw a figure in chauffeur's dress peer cautiously out. Bobby! He made a beckoning gesture, then withdrew inside, leaving the door ajar.

Frankie stepped gingerly over the threshold into a dark hall. She stopped, peering about her.

"Bobby?" she whispered.

It was her nose that gave her warning. Where had she known that smell before—that heavy, sweet odor?

Just as her brain gave the answer "Chloroform," strong arms seized her from behind. She opened her mouth to scream and a wet pad was clapped over it. The sweet, cloying smell filled her nostrils.

She fought desperately, twisting and turning, kicking. But it was of no avail. Despite the fight she put up she felt herself succumbing. There was a drumming in her ears, she felt herself choking. And then she knew no more.

WHEN Frankie came to herself the immediate reactions were depressing. There is nothing romantic about the after-effects of chloroform. She was lying on an extremely hard wooden floor and her hands and feet were tied. She managed to roll herself over, and her head nearly collided violently with a battered coal-box. Various distressing events then occurred.

A few minutes later Frankie was able, if not to sit up, at least to take notice.

Close at hand she heard a faint groan. As far as she could make out she seemed to be in a kind of attic. The only light came from a skylight in the roof, and at this moment there was very little of that. In a few minutes it would be quite dark.

The groan seemed to have come from the corner.

Frankie's bonds were not very tight. She wormed her way across the dusty floor.

"Bobby?" she ejaculated.

Bobby? He was also tied hand and foot. In addition he had a piece of cloth bound round his mouth. This he had almost succeeded in working loose. Frankie came to his assistance, in spite of being bound to her hands were still of some use, and a final vigorous pull with the teeth finally did the job.

Rather stiffly Bobby managed to ejaculate, "Frankie!"

"How did they get you?" demanded Frankie. "Was it after you wrote that letter to me?"

"What letter? I never wrote any letter!"

"Oh, I see!" said Frankie, her eyes opening. "What an idiot I have been!"

Tomorrow, their mysterious visitor calls their bluff.

He described his adventures at the Grange and their sinister sequel. "I came to in this beastly hole," he said. "There was some food and drink on a tray, I was frightfully hungry and I had some. I think it must have been doped for I fell asleep almost immediately. What day is it?"

"Friday."

"And I was knocked out on Wednesday evening. Now tell me what happened to you."

Frankie recounted her adventures beginning with the story she had heard from Mr. Sprague and carrying on until she thought she recognized Bobby's figure in the doorway.

"And then they chloroformed me," she finished.

"The thing is," said Bobby, "what are we going to do now?"

"If only I had told Roger about your letter," lamented Frankie.

"The only thing I can't make out is why they didn't knock us both on the head straight away," mused Bobby. "I don't think Nicholson would stick at a little trifling like that."

"He's got a plan," said Frankie with a slight shiver.

"Well, we better have one, too. We've got to get out of this, Frankie. How are we going to do it?"

"We can about," said Frankie.

"Yes," said Bobby. "Somebody might be passing and hear. But from the fact that Nicholson didn't gag you I should say that the chances in that direction are pretty poor. Your hands are more loosely tied than mine. Let's see if I can get them undone with my teeth."

The next few minutes were spent in a struggle that did credit to Bobby's dentistry.

"Extraordinarily how easy these things sound in books," he panted. "I don't believe I'm making the slightest impression."

"You are," said Frankie. "It's loosening. Look out there's somebody coming."

She rolled away from him.

"AND now are my two little birds?" said the voice of Dr. Nicholson.

He carried a candle in one hand, and though he was wearing a hat pulled down over his eyes and a heavy overcoat with the collar turned up, his voice would have betrayed him anywhere.

He shook his head at them playfully.

"Unworthy of you, my dear young lady," he said. "To fall into the trap so easily."

Nicholson put the candle down on a chair.

"At any rate," he said, "let me see if you are comfortable."

He examined Bobby's fastenings, nodded his head approvingly and passed on to Frankie. There he shook his head.

"As they truly used to say to me in my youth," he remarked, "fingers were made before forks—and teeth were used before fingers. Your young friend's teeth, I see, have been active."

A heavy, broken-backed oak chair was standing in a corner.

Nicholson picked up Frankie, deposited her on the chair and tied her securely to it.

Frankie found her tongue. "What are you going to do with us?" she demanded.

Nicholson walked to the door and picked up his candle.

"Shall I tell you? Yes, I think I will. Lady Frances Desmet, driving her car, her chauffeur beside her, mistakes a turning and takes a disused road leading to a quarry. The car crashes over the edge. Lady Frances and her chauffeur are killed."

There was a slight pause, then Bobby said:

"But we mightn't be. Plans go awry sometimes. One of yours did last night, Wales."

"Your tolerance of morphine was certainly very remarkable, and—" from our point of view—regrettable," said Nicholson. "But you need have no anxiety on my behalf this time."

"He enjoys this," thought Bobby. And aloud he said in a casual voice, "You're making a mistake—especially where Lady Frances is concerned."

"Yes," said Frankie. "Is that clever letter you forged you told me to tell nobody. Well, I told Roger Huntington-Smith. If anything happens to us he will know who is responsible. You'd better let us go and clear out of the country as fast as you can."

No. 28
 DEDUCTIONS FOR TRAVELING EXPENSES

To obtain a deduction for travelling expenses, which form an important item in the returns of many taxpayers, certain regulations must be observed. The taxpayer is required to attach to his return a statement showing the nature of business to which engaged number of days away from home during the taxable year on account of business, total amount of expense incidental to meals and lodging, and total amount of "other expenses" incident to travel and claimed as a deduction. Among the "other expenses" are tips, provided they are reasonable in amount.

Travelling expenses are deductible only when the trip is on business. They are limited to such expenses as are reasonable and necessary in the conduct of the business and directly attributable to it.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER
 WASHINGTON.—There is a familiar saying among politicians during a national election year which goes like this:

"The Republican party seeks a slogan, and the Democratic party seeks a slogan. If the Republicans can find the proper slogan, the Democrats can find the proper slogan, almost any kind of a candidate will do."

The Democrats have sought to dispel that idea in so far as they were concerned.

Nevertheless, Al Smith's "Let's look at the record" echoed from Democratic stumps throughout the land, and "A chicken in every pot and two cars in every garage" played an important part in the election of Herbert Hoover.

Slogan Formula

Evidence that the campaign slogan is destined for a major role in the coming campaign is evidenced by attempts already made by members of both parties to hit upon one that will stick.

"Big Jim" Farley suggested "Keep Roosevelt in and the gang out" but he didn't have much luck in having it accepted. "Save the constitution," advanced as the Republican campaign cry, received a serious setback by the supreme court's decision on TVA.

Al Smith's "Take a walk" may go places yet. The young Republicans' cry of a "Square deal," however, appears to have encountered apathy.

It is reported Senator Borah is toying with "Fair Deal" for a campaign slogan.

Any one planning to try his hand at coining '36 campaign slogans for either party should keep the following formula, prescribed by an eminent political authority, in mind:

"First, it should sound well and mean nothing definite; it must be witty, short, crisp, and contain only one idea. To be popular it must be clever. Second, it should seem to mean more than it says—to suggest a meaning which is free from attack and involve such concepts as 'democracy,' 'justice' and 'equality.' Third, it usually capitalizes prejudices and is designed to take public interest away from the issues of the campaign."

Famous Old Cries

HERE are some of the more famous slogans of past campaigns:

"Tippecanoe and Tyler, too." This one helped elect Harrison.

If the following isn't a national record, it is at least a remarkable achievement: Drivers of vehicles of the Oklahoma Gas and Electric Company have in the last 10 years, driven 38,000,000 miles without a fatal accident. This is equal to driving around the earth at the equator 1,128 times, or making the round trip from New York to Los Angeles 4,188 times, or 34 years of continuous driving at 400 miles a day. If anything were needed to prove that the terrible death rate charged up against automobiles is unnecessary, these facts are the evidence required.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

Rambles and ruminations: The clatter of a pneumatic riveter at Forty-fifth and Broadway. . . . Crowds of idly curious watching the steel workers. . . . Hope there are a lot of steam showers this summer. . . . They are one of my favorite excuses for loafing. . . . Also "pneumatic" is a hard word for me on the type-writer. . . . The "n" and the "e" want to change places. . . . and usually succeed. . . . Unless I watch them. . . . Which interferes with the workings of the subconscious mind. . . . and slows up production. . . . Charles Francis Coe who writes about crime. . . . and who is president of the Lotus club. . . . Nina Wilcox Putnam leading her dog along Lexington avenue. . . . Thought I glimpsed Kathleen Norris on Fifth avenue. . . . Maybe I was mistaken. . . . At any rate, she returned recently from a world tour.

India house, a bit of the far-away in Hanover square. . . . With its maritime membership. . . . and quaint high ceilings. . . . Curly lovers make frequent visits there. . . . The dingy piers of the East river. . . . Little boats that crawl along the coast of South America. . . . and call at ports known by few tourists. . . . The trim ships that ply the Caribbean. . . . Last night, I dreamed twice I was on a Spanish Main cruise. . . . But couldn't make it the third time. . . . Still, I can look at the ships. . . . and at those who are sailing. . . . A white yacht swiftly passing down the murky stream. . . . Seems a bit strange at this time of the year. . . . The clutter of the Brooklyn Navy yard. . . . and the dingy section that surrounds it. . . . Sailors looking at the river with their hands in the pockets of their reefers. . . . and their throats exposed to the breezes.

Hugh Baillie, president of the United Press. . . . Who has just returned from Europe. . . . When I first turned him, he was on the city desk in the New York bureau. . . . Billy Burke and her daughter Patricia who are back from Hollywood. . . . A red-faced, mustached woman bearing a wisp of a man. . . . He smiles as she rants. . . . and a policeman friend informs me that he's stone deaf. . . . College boys, each with a vision of loveliness on his arm, invading a cocktail lounge. . . . Marjorie Elizabeth Barlow, one of the prettiest and most sought after debs. . . . Who will take up the study of nursing. . . . Not as a career but because she believes such knowledge is valuable.

Quail, pheasants, venison, wild turkey, Scotch grouse and bear meat available at the swanky places. . . . Quail here—don't taste like they used to. . . . When father shot them. . . . and mother cooked them to the realms of nicety, as Ned would say. . . . Delicious oblongs of brown on tasty toast. . . . But picking them was something else again. . . . Wonder if there are still corn salve peddlers? . . . Stanley Walker, who has taken up an abode at the Algonquin. . . . Billy Walsh, the old circus man. . . . Who recalls the days of the high pitch. . . . and the short change artist. . . . Ted Donahue, who recently celebrated his tenth anniversary as an orchestra conductor. . . . and who has 13 orchestras playing here and abroad.

Hamilton Knowles, custodian of cephalopods at the Aquarium. . . . His pet octopus, Bozo, has made such a hit that he's figuring on putting a half dozen more on exhibition. . . . Bozo can blush a variety of colors, including green. . . . He's now so tame, he doesn't squirt ink. . . . Bozo attained fame by living in captivity. . . . Which octopi seldom do.

Looking out from the living room window—we're 14 floors up—we gaze across the roofs of nearby tenements over to another taller than its neighbors. . . . It's a great rookery with long rows of windows, some curtained and some merely with blinds. We get occasional glimpses of tenement home life. But I like night-time best. Then, with various windows glowing, with the red light of Riverside church far in the background and with dim outlines of water tanks impinging against the skies, it's like a theater back drop. But it's more like the New York I visioned before becoming one of The Seven Million.

Bus stop eavesdropping: "She opened with a psychic spade bid and he took her to six so trump and now she's talking about a divorce."

Stage Death Stab

by Actor Is Real

Munich.—An actor in an Austrian village was stabbed to death accidentally by a fellow performer in a stage scene because the guard had been left off a dagger blade. Villagers at Riedsdorf, a tiny village near the German frontier, were watching a re-enactment of the French Revolution, in his part, playfully stabbed August Pann, a fellow peasant actor, with a dagger. As he did so, Pann fell to the floor. The "properties man" had forgotten to put the wooden guard on the sharp blade. It penetrated to Pann's heart, killing him instantly.

Too many American farms are behind the times. In the west, where electricity is used extensively for irrigation, and in thickly settled North Atlantic States, about one farm in three has electric service. In the south and throughout the middle west rural electrification is very much rarer and in some states almost non-existent.

WHY, BARBARA... WHAT IN THE WORLD ARE YOU DOING?

I'M CHIPPING UP SOAP FOR MY WASHER. WHAT DO YOU THINK I'M DOING?

NO OFFENSE, BABS, BUT WHY USE AN OLD-FASHIONED SOAP WITH A MODERN WASHER? GET RINSO. IT GIVES RICHER AND MORE LASTING SUDS, AND GETS CLOTHES MUCH WHITER

HOW SILLY I WAS TO BE SATISFIED WITH CLOTHES THAT WEREN'T ANY WHITER THAN WHEN I USED TO SCRUB THEM. MY WASH IS SO SNOWY, THANKS TO RINSO

YOU'LL LIKE THOSE CREAMY SUDS FOR DISHES, TOO

THERE'S even more reason for the woman without a washing machine to use Rinso. And here's why: Rinso's rich, lively suds safely melt out the dirt—get clothes much whiter and brighter without scrubbing or boiling. Even soiled cuffs and edges come clean with a little gentle rubbing between the fingers. And because Rinso saves scrubbing, clothes last 2 or 3 times longer. Rinso gives creamy suds that last and last—even in hardest water. Recommended by the makers of 33 famous washers. Grand for all cleaning. So easy on your hands. Try it!

WHEN the Party adjourns to the KITCHEN...

Do You really welcome Them?

IN these days of informal entertainment your guests are quite as likely to see your kitchen as any other room. And no other room advertises your living standards as does the kitchen. Here are some of the features of a completely modern kitchen.

A GAS RANGE of gleaming porcelain, probably with table-top for more work space. If the kitchen needs additional heating, this is done by a compact gas heater built into the range itself.

AUTOMATIC HOT WATER supplied without question by an automatic gas storage water-heater, so that faucets marked "Hot" really produce hot water.

AUTOMATIC REFRIGERATION for easy hospitality as well as for modern care-free food storage.

AMPLE WORK SPACE, provided by modern planning. This depends less on the floor area of the kitchen itself than in the fitting of modern appliances into a compact kitchen unit. We shall be glad to aid you in the planning of a modern kitchen, and in financing the purchase of modern appliances.

LET KIDNEYS FLUSH OUT 3 LBS. A DAY

Clean Out 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes

Nature put over 15 miles of tiny tubes and filters in your kidneys to strain the waste matter out of the blood. Kidneys should pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter.

When the passing of water is scanty, with smarting and burning, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your body may take up some of these poisons causing serious trouble. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, which have been used successfully by millions of people for over 40 years. They give happy relief and help the kidneys to flush out 3 pounds a day. Insist on Doan's Pills.

Events Around The Empire State

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 28 (AP)—Harry W. Wright, of suburban Kenmore, believes he is the first victim of the season. Wright was reading a newspaper at home when he felt a jab on the neck. Man-like, he turned to find Mrs. Wright, saying that the bee hibernated in her golf bag and thawed out when she brought her clubs down from the attic.

Catskill, N. Y., Feb. 27 (AP)—Alfred E. Volkman, Jr., 20, of Greenville, will go on trial in supreme court here April 13 on a charge of murder, first degree, in the death of Helen Glenn, 9. The date for the trial was set yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Gilbert V. Schenck. The girl, daughter of a minister, was slain last June.

Plattsburgh, N. Y., Feb. 27 (AP)—Striking pupils at Morrisonville High School awaited a reply from the board of education today to their demand that contracts of four teachers be renewed. The Plattsburgh press says no answer for the pupils have indicated they will not return to their classes until assurance in writing is received from the school board that the faculty members will be rehired. The newspaper adds that the amount of state aid, based on average daily attendance, might be reduced if the pupils are recorded as "illegally absent."

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 27 (AP)—M. Linn Buncie, 75, of Andes, who served as lieutenant governor of New York state in 1905 and 1906, died last night of a heart attack. He was active in state Republican campaigns for years. A native of Mercersburg, Pa., he was a graduate of Rutgers University and later practiced law in New York city.

Gouverneur, N. Y., Feb. 27 (AP)—Fred Boshane, Jr., 6, was under treatment today for burns on the arms and face suffered yesterday in rescuing two younger sisters when fire swept their home. The boy carried the girls, Frances, 3, and Elizabeth, 1, from the second floor to safety.

Middletown, N. Y., Feb. 27 (AP)—Frank Mutchler, Monroe dairy farmer, said today that he had killed two of a pack of wild dogs after he was attacked by their leader. Mutchler said the leader, a German shepherd female, sprang at him near his dairy barn. He said his own dog, Tex, a German shepherd male, saved his life by holding off the pack until he and his two sons could get shotguns. Reports of wild dogs harrasing farm animals have been prevalent in this section for some time and 30 deer have been found dead within two weeks.

More Communist devilry. Russia is trying to ship caviar to all the rest of the world—and make 'em like it.

The Associated Press Develops New Portable Picture Transmitter

WIREPHOTO MEMBERS AND EDITORS:

The attached print is transmitted directly on the Wirephoto network from a portable transmitting set. The picture is sent four by five inches and is enlarged automatically on the wire. It is a reproduction of a picture sent earlier in the day in order to give you an accurate comparison of the two and to demonstrate that all the fidelity of tones is retained even with changing conditions.

It is planned to establish these machines at all important news centers which do not at present have transmitting sets. This will mean doubling the area in which coverage is obtained by wire transmission. The machines also can be transported by airplane, train or automobile to the scene of action for immediate handling of any pictures of important events or incidents involved in the news report.

The transmitter was engineered by The Associated Press.

EDDY COOPER
General Manager

New York,
February 26, 1936

The above picture and note were sent from New York by The Associated Press over its picture wire circuit in connection with the announcement of its new portable photo transmitting equipment. These machines, engineered by The Associated Press, supplement the Wirephoto system in gathering and distributing news photos. The picture, sent in 4 by 5-inch size, is electrically enlarged to 8 by 10 inches in transmission.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The campaign of Dorothy Peterson, the "eternal mother" of the movies, to be herself in pictures is still a continued story.

It may be ended when "The Country Doctor" is seen, but even that is only a possibility. For in this picture about the Dionne quintuplets Miss Peterson, while not the mother of the famous five, portrays their nurse. And the nurse has more to do with them (in the picture as in reality) than in their mother.

Dorothy Peterson

Miss Peterson's campaign and its origin, of course, is Hollywood's established fondness for keeping players doing what they've done before. Miss Peterson's mistake was starting off with "Mother's Cry." In that picture she cried maternally, and her cry since has been one for freedom from cinematic motherhood.

A Natural Red-Head

She is in her thirties, with a youthful face and a wide and pleasant smile. Her hair is a natural light red.

But in pictures she is more likely to be in her fifties, her face lined with wrinkles, and her hair white or streaked with snow.

She began her campaign after several successors to "Mother's Cry" found her still a poor, down-trodden mother. She began telling everyone she met, "But I'm not the least maternal, you know."

She did more than that. She spent money on her wardrobe, dressed smartly in clothes becoming to her personality, and went to interview producers. She is sure the money—that way—was wasted. The producers would stare through the woman, see only a sweet-faced, patient, kindly, understanding, more or less bedraggled—poor old mother.

Cigarettes No Help

The campaign included an independent attitude. "If you won't play my way, I won't play," she twice asserted. But it did no good. Neither did the urbane way she smokes a cigarette. She could act maternal, of course, at Hollywood parties, except that she doesn't play the social game in business.

So she still is not certain her campaign is over. This role in "The Country Doctor," however, may lead the way out, she thinks.

On The Radio Day By Day

By G. A. SUTHERLAND

Time is Eastern Standard.

New York, Feb. 27 (AP).—Leap Year's supposed to be of more vital importance to women; for that reason WABC-CBS is to put on a "Lady in the Street" broadcast on the last day of February at 5:15. Patterned after the "Man in the Street" pickups, in which male sidewalk travelers have been questioned about one thing or another, this one is to be entirely women. Only women will be quizzed, and the quizzers likewise will be women in such cities as New York, Boston, Washington, Chicago, St. Louis and Los Angeles. Naturally, the questions will center around whether women should propose.

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, mentioned as a possibility for the Republican Presidential nomination, is announced to speak in the WABC-NBC Radio Forum Monday night. He will give his views from the standpoint of a "Layman Looking at the Supreme Court." Another speaker, Senator Robert F. MODES OF THE MOMENT

fashions an afternoon
frocks.
Sana Merwin

Lace, the fabric so favored this season for formal and informal wear, is accepted as high style for dressy afternoon frocks, too. There are many laces to choose from, Chantilly lace, starched laces, Alençon lace and metallic laces—all are equally attractive and make charming gowns.

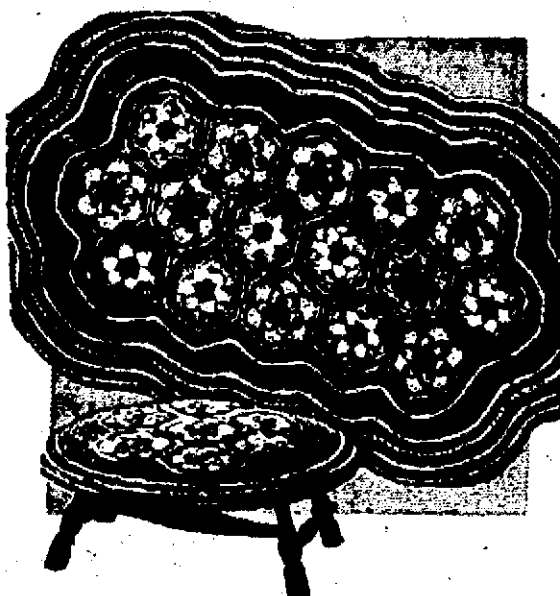

The lovely jacket frock pictured to the left (size 16) can be worn smartly by the larger woman and yet not have the "big size" look—for designers have accomplished the trick of keeping youthful style touches in the above is a woman's model (size 16) frocks for the more generously proportioned.

Navy lace is used for this street-length jacket frock for afternoon wear. The dress has a self jabot collar, short sleeves and uses navy grosgrain ribbon for the tie at neck and belt.

The box jacket with long bell-shaped sleeves and two pockets adds much smartness to this costume. While navy and all the dark shades are more in order for matronly figures, this dress also comes in many of the new shades for spring.

Crochet That's New And Simple

PATTERN 5544

"Can anyone do it?" Most assuredly, says Alice Brooks, who has designed this lovely rug, a matching foot-stool top and pillow for quick crocheting. Easy, six-sided medallions are done one by one, each flower a different color with background uniform or not, as you please. Sew them together and you're ready to begin the border crocheting, going round and round with stripes of color used to break the background. Rug wool, rags or candlewicking may be used.

In pattern 5544 you will find complete instructions for making the rug shown; an illustration of it and of all stitches needed; material requirements; color suggestions.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to the Kingston Daily Freeman Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

MARIAN MARTIN CALLS DRESS WITH JACKET—A DOUBLE ASSET!

PATTERN 9784

If your budget refuses to "budge" in the matter of extensive wardrobe replenishment this spring, insist at least, on a frock with matching jacket. For it will repay you with countless wearings. Admirably styled to give the average-sized matron slenderness, it's also a boon to the size 46, who will realize a world of gracious flattery in its height-gracing lines. A glance at the frock itself tells you sleeves and yoke are cut in one, for simplicity. Other parts of frock and jacket are equally simple. Make it up in triple sheer, a soft, flat crepe or printed silk, and you'll have the added joy of wearing the jacket with other frocks. Complete, diagrammed Marian Martin Sew Chart included.

Pattern 9784 may be ordered in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 8 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric and 3/4 yard contrast.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Be sure to send for our new Spring Pattern Book! You'll be happy as a lark over the way it simplifies your clothes problems! Dozens of easy-to-make, flattering designs—smart both for now and later in the season. News of Spring fabrics and accessories. Special slenderizing designs. Clothes budget hints. Home Institute WRITE LIKE PROFESSIONAL

PRACTICE BRINGS SKILL IN HANDLING SUBJECT

When the postman brings a check from an editor! That's the big moment for the newcomer to the field of writing.

That's the thrilling instant when writers realize that they have passed from the amateur to the professional class. They've passed from the stage of sheer dizzy enjoyment to putting thoughts on paper, of making some scene or character live again in words satisfying only to the writer.

They have reached the important point where they can say to themselves, "Yes, I certainly had a lot of fun telling about the interesting little antique shop where I saw that adorable Duncan Phyfe table. BUT—did I give too much space to the account of that shop in proportion to its interest?" How keen about Duncan Phyfe tables is the average person? Isn't he more likely to be interested in love, action, drama, every-day experiences?"

In other words, these writers who have reached the professional stage have learned to look upon the reader as a fisherman looks on a wily old trout.

The problem is to catch this reader-trout with the long line of human interest, and the little hook of vivid language, and pull him in with the reel of drama and suspense and aroused curiosity. As you develop skill with each one of these devices, you will have that indescribable satisfaction of feeling your own powers grow!

No longer do you grope for words! No longer do you see a thing vividly, and hear it fall flat as you tell it! With day-by-day practice, you have acquired real writing technique.

What kind of practice? Well, get the advice of a man who has helped thousands of beginners to help themselves—who believes that writing is always self-taught. Our 40-page illustrated Home Institute booklet, SELF-INSTRUCTION IN WRITING, gives you this man's practical guidance in your writing campaign. Save months of effort by "getting off on the right foot!" To order your copy, use coupon.

ZENA

Zena, Feb. 26—The Christian Endeavor meeting on Friday evening was under the leadership of William Harcourt, who used for his topic, "The Church and the Community". The Rev. Mr. Heidenreich gave a short talk at the end of the meeting. There will be no meeting this week as most of the members are planning to attend the leap year party of the Ulster County C. E. Union at the Congregational Church in Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. Frank Lynch motored to Phoenix last Thursday to spend the day there with friends.

Mrs. Dan Lynch was able to be outside for a while on Sunday for the first time after being ill at her home with asthma and bronchitis for nearly a month.

Montena DeWitt was in Lehigh last week-end at the home of his father, Henry DeWitt. Frank Lynch has joined the Capital District Airedale Terrier Club.

With Mrs. Lynch, he will attend the next meeting of this club to be held at the home of Dr. W. B. Cowell, Menands road, Menands.

Miss Florence Hill was a week-end guest at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. John Heidenreich in Kingston. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hung are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son last Friday.

Junior Chamber of Commerce to Meet On Monday, March 2

The first meeting of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, for the purpose of organization, will be held Monday night, March 2, at 8 o'clock, in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Harry LaMothe of Schryver Court, who took the steps toward organization of the chamber, today said he expects more than 50 young men at the meeting, and that the body will be a real live, progressive group, with suggestions and activities for the advancement of Kingston, industrially and commercially.

The Freeman published a story several days ago, inviting Kingston's young progressives to contact Mr. LaMothe for particulars on the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and response was more than gratifying, he said. This group of young men, when organized, will work in collaboration with Mayor Conrad J. Relsheim's Industrial Committee.

A letter of personal endorsement has been promised by the mayor, Mr. LaMothe told a reporter today. Several other endorsements are forthcoming from organizations with a program for civic advancement.

Speakers at the meeting next Monday will be Thomas W. Sweeney of New York city, president of the New York State Junior Chamber of Com-

Politics at Random

IT NOW is possible to get a somewhat clearer view of the Republican situation, although many obscurities persist.

The most prominent feature of the picture is the effort of a powerful group of old-line leaders to prevent any foreclosures of the presidential nomination in advance of the convention.

This effort is focused principally in the east and mid-west. The plan is to keep the convention balance of power in the hands of a sizeable bloc of delegates pledged to no candidate. That would make it possible to settle the matter on the ground, after a final canvass of the situation.

To this movement adhere many of the recognized leaders of the old guard. Apparently no objection is raised by the friends of most of the candidates.

Whether Herbert Hoover is to be a candidate or not, his associates appear to believe that his best bet is to let the nomination question remain open. The supporters of Governor Landon manifestly are seeking to keep him as much as the "dark horse" class as possible, and to avoid arousing resentment by entering primary contests.

Naturally, the friends of such other dark horse candidates as Senator Vandenberg and Senator Dickinson interpose no opposition. A dead-locked convention, with a preponderant number of delegates free to shift to a compromise candidate, would be exactly to their liking.

How It May Go

THERE is one exception—possibly two. The definite exception is Senator Borah. The possible exception is Colonel Knox.

Knox himself refrains from discussing the political wisdom of choosing uninstructed delegates, but his adherents are at work in many states for delegates instructed for Knox. He alone, aside from Borah, is showing a readiness to go into the primaries and fight it out.

Borah's opposition to the uninstructed-delegate program is open and direct. He pronounces it an scheme to disfranchise the common voters, and permit the old guard to make its own choice, for its own purposes, in a backroom caucus.

Thus do events appear to arrange themselves, on the basis of the present circumstances, for three successive waves of action.

First comes the initial heat between Borah and Knox, each seeking to line up enough delegates to nominate him.

If these two are stopped, or if they stop each other in the convention, the next step seemingly will be to try out Landon, or possibly Hoover.

Finally, if neither of these can make the grade, the convention must turn to the dark horses. If it is of a mind to select a candidate with a mediocre record on the "new deal," it will be offered Vandenberg. If it seems better to take an out-and-out, it will be asked to look over Dickinson.

By BYRON PRICE
(Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

It's Happened Before

WHETHER any prophetic implications attach to the fact or not, it is interesting to note that the central Republican question, "to instruct or not to instruct," is not new to politics.

"It would be wiser not to instruct delegates," argued a prominent old-line political leader on another occasion. "The convention should be unfettered. It should be prepared to do what is best for party and country in the immediate circumstances which confront it."

"The plan (of uninstructed delegates) would disfranchise the great body of voters," replied another, and would enable a handful of individuals to handpick a candidate as a process of trade and barter."

The date of these utterances was February, 1932. The party referred to was the Democratic party.

The gentleman advocating uninstructed delegations was J. P. Morgan, then chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, now president of the Liberty League.

The gentleman who disagreed with him was Franklin D. Roosevelt, then governor of New York, now President of the United States.

MODENA

Modena, Feb. 27.—Next Thursday afternoon the Ladies' Aid Society of the Modena Methodist Church will hold a meeting at Mrs. George Dunsinber's home.

Next Thursday evening the Modena fire department will meet in the fire house and hold their annual election of officers.

Rev. F. M. O'Reilly of Rosendale Transferred To Mt. Vernon Church

Rosendale is to lose the Rev. Francis M. O'Reilly, S. T. D., pastor of St. Peter's Church, ex-army officer, prominent American Legion member, progressive civic leader and scholar. Father O'Reilly has been transferred from St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, and the two affiliated churches in Whiteport and High Falls to the Church of St. Ursula, Chester Heights, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. His appointment to the new pastorate is to take effect on Saturday, March 7.

St. Peter's, which has had Father O'Reilly as its spiritual guide for the past 12 years, will have the Rev. William MacDonald as its pastor. Father MacDonald now is first assistant of Corpus Christi Church, West 131st street, New York, and the Rosendale, Whiteport and High Falls charges will be his first pastorate.

Fathers O'Reilly and MacDonald are close friends, having known each other since their student days at St. Joseph's Seminary at Yonkers. Ulster county was stirred by Father O'Reilly's oratorical powers as he spoke on numerous occasions, religious, patriotic and civic, soon after taking up his pastorate at Rosendale, and his reputation for scholarly sermons and addresses has grown to endless bounds throughout this region where he is beloved not alone by the people of his own religious denomination but by those of all faiths and creeds.

Father O'Reilly has spoken in practically all of the Catholic Churches of Kingston and surrounding country and in public halls and meeting places. He made the dedicatory address at the opening of the American Legion building in Kingston, speaking from his own experience as a military leader during the World War; acted as the chairman of the speakers' committee for the American Legion state convention; was chairman of the Ulster County American Legion, and spoke before the Kingston Rotary, Kiwanis, Knights of Columbus and Elks as well as other fraternal and civic organizations.

During Father O'Reilly's pastorate at Rosendale, many changes have taken place at St. Peter's. One outstanding transformation has been the beautification of the grounds where thousands of dollars were expended in improving the grounds and building the proper sort of roads along artistic lines, that are marks of beauty as well as useful passages.

Many other improvements have been made to the church properties, outstanding among them being the Bijou Theatre and hall. These two centers of public gathering made many new friends for the progressive priest and his parishioners, and attracted an influx of play-goers and entertainment seekers who enlivened the village that previously had been labeled as a sleepy little hamlet. Father O'Reilly, who had an inclination toward the theatre, and the best it had to offer, presented some of the higher type entertainments that used to draw capacity houses.

Father O'Reilly after completing his studies at St. Joseph's Seminary took up post graduate work at the Catholic University of America in Washington. He earned three additional degrees, S. T. D., and S. T. L., and J. C. B. The International University of Rome was the next institution he attended and there received the highest theological degree of the Catholic Church, S. T. D. From there he went to Germany and earned the Ph. D. degree.

After finishing his studies in Europe, Father O'Reilly, who pronounced what was termed one of the six best public speaking voices, returned to the Washington University to instruct in historical dogma and comparative religions.

While Father O'Reilly was in Washington, the United States entered the World War. The priest, a personal friend of President Woodrow Wilson, was in the White House when Baron Von Bernstorff, German ambassador received the diplomatic papers ending friendly relations between the U. S. and his country. Father O'Reilly immediately offered his services to his country. First he considered the navy, thinking the war would be mainly a sea struggle, but later changed his mind and enlisted in the army.

The Washington Post, carrying the news of the entry of the U. S. into the war, also featured the enlistment of Father O'Reilly into the service of his country.

Father O'Reilly was received into the army with the rank of first lieutenant and went to France as a major. He served at Chateau-Thierry for a year and a half. At the Meuse-Argonne October 26, 1918, he was seriously wounded in a shell burst at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and was not picked up until 5 o'clock the following morning. While he lay on the field of battle, poison gas affected his lungs and voice. For four years the priest was confined to hospitals.

Although he never chose to discuss it, Father O'Reilly was one of the fighting chaplains of the war, having been in charge of artillery fire for 36 hours after the officer in command had his leg shot off. This took place at Chateau-Thierry at the height of the German drive on Paris. Father O'Reilly's superior, directing fire, was Norman Schwartzkopf, present head of the New Jersey state troopers.

After the war and his period of hospitalization, Father O'Reilly again taught at Washington for four months, but illness interfered with his work. He resigned and went to Texas. From the south he returned to New York and was elected president of the Third Division Regular Army Society. He's the first priest that ever held the office. He turned to welfare work and raised $76,000 for tubercular veterans. He spent some time at the Industrial School in Lincolnville, N. Y., and then was assigned to Rosendale, Whiteport and High Falls.

During the Rondout Valley flood of 1927, Father O'Reilly was one of the leaders in rescue work, risking his life to save those entrapped by the high swirling waters, that devastated the Rosendale area. Father O'Reilly's work was highly commended in all of the leading newspapers, which carried stories and pictures of his activities.

Business Meeting Of TB Auxiliary

March comes so quickly and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital, who have just had a very delightful Valentine party, under the direction of Mrs. A. du Bois Rose, realize that next Monday, March 2, is the day for their regular meeting.

A short business meeting will be held at 3 o'clock in the parlors at the hospital, when further plans for the happiness of the patients will be discussed. The library, owing to generous donations, is growing rapidly and the system installed by the library committee is working smoothly and effectively, which provides untold delight to those who have to spend so many weary hours in bed.

At 4 o'clock tea will be served. Mrs. Frederic Holcomb, president of the auxiliary, will be hostess for the afternoon and cordially invites members and those interested in TB eradication to be present at that time.

WURTS ST. BAPTIST MEN'S CLUB TO HOLD SUPPER

Tuesday evening, March 3, at 6:30 o'clock, the Men's Club of the Wurts Street Baptist Church will hold a pancake supper. "Charlie" Nestell, who is in charge of the supper, expects a large crowd and has promised a first-class meal for a very small price. Tickets have been distributed and may be obtained from any member of the club or at the door on Tuesday night.

The officers of the club are very much encouraged by the amount of interest which is being shown by the members. The monthly meetings are showing an increase in attendance, and all of the men are very much interested in the various games which are enjoyed after the business part of the meetings.

Seedless persimmons, result of years of experiments, are the boast of J. T. Jordan of Eastland, Texas.

Brazil Nut Crops Never

Planted and Not Picked

There is no stranger harvest than that which supplies the demand for Brazil nuts, observes a writer in Pearson's Weekly. No human hand has ever sown the seeds, nor does the crop ever need picking. It lies, patiently waiting man's pleasure on the sudden forces of that immense stretch of tropical jungle in the lower Amazon valley. Here flourishes the Brazil nut tree, or castanha do Para, as the natives call it.

Despite this unusual lavishness of Nature no harvest could be harder to win; none is fraught with more risks. Before reaching the wild nut groves, the castanheiros (nut gatherers) must penetrate hundreds of miles of fern streams and swamps home of flesh-eating fish, venomous water snakes and electric eels. The final stages of their journey must be hacked through dense untamed undergrowth, where poisonous thorns, orchids, spiders and insects contest every yard of their progress.

The Clepsydra

Arceus Tacticus wrote, about 350 B. C., describing an ingenious signaling device called the clepsydra. Two cylindrical vessels of the same size and shape, were provided with taps from which water would run at exactly the same rate. Into each vessel there was loosely fitted a float to which was attached an upright rod marked off into equal sections. On the corresponding sections of each rod, identical messages were written. When a message was to be sent, the attendant at the sending station displayed a torch. This signal was acknowledged by displaying a torch at the receiving station, whereupon the attendants at both stations started the water running from their clepsydres. When the rod at the sending station had sunk so that the desired message was level with the rim of the vessel, the attendant there again signaled with his torch. The rod at the receiving station had, of course, sunk to the corresponding message, which was then read by the attendant there.

"Marine Store Dealer"

When a sailing ship came into port in the old days a man used to go aboard and bid for the old sails that had been torn by tropical storms. He was also given odd lengths of rope and all the junk accumulated during a voyage of many months. "Marine store dealer" was the man's title, and he dealt with ships which sailed the Seven Seas. Later there was little for the marine store dealer to do—the big shipping lines managed their own affairs. As his trade with ships went, the dealer started to buy rice, old hats, tea and the like from houses in waterfront towns. Now he has become the voracious razz and home man—though still his official name is marine store dealer.

The Olympic Games were intended to promote international friendship, but judging from the spirit shown in the first friendly skirmishes, they promote as much ill will as a naval engagement.

LONDON RESTORING HISTORIC OLD INN

Famous as Haunt of Dickens and Johnson.

London.—Staple Inn, one of London's best known relics of Tudor architecture, has just been saved from toppling out into the crowded traffic of modern Holborn street. The ravages of the deathwatch beetle, which has accounted for destruction of many another historic building, were discovered just in time and restoration is to begin at once. The shoring process at the front, so handsomely cross-timbered that it is a picture postcard classic, has started.

Settling of one side of the building, where the beetles had got in their heaviest work, was estimated at 14 inches from the horizontal. The beams, put in when the inn was built at the beginning of the sixteenth century, have been forced away from each other at the joints and have rotted badly at the ends. Until the building was shored up experts dared not enter the upper floors to find out how serious the damage was. An firm of stationers and a confectioner have been moved out of the ground floor.

Staple Inn has seen many vicissitudes, one of them much more threatening than the deathwatch beetle—the Great Fire of 1696, which came within a block of it, stopping at Fetter Lane, which is now the commissary street for the Inns of Court residents. When workmen were cleaning up its front some years ago they discovered deep under four layers of paint one of the great red crosses which marked it as a plague hostel during the great plague, which carried off a third of the inhabitants of London before it was stopped.

During the eighteenth century Doctor Johnson frequented its taproom, stumping through a courtyard in which still stands a sign warning against the entry of old clothes men and "rude children playing." There Dickens used to linger under the fine old overhanging second story. He put it into many of his novels.

Oldest Church in New World Is Near Collapse

San Juan, Porto Rico.—Porta Coeli (Gate of Heaven) church, America's oldest existing Christian edifice, at San German, in the western part of this island, is threatened with ruin. Recent heavy rains caused the collapse of a large section of the southern wall in the courtyard surrounding the aged temple.

A general inspection following the incident disclosed that the entire building is badly damaged, and church and civic authorities are taking immediate steps toward conservation of the historical relic by a thorough reconstruction.

The situation will be presented at the next session of the insular legislature next February, and it is also planned to interest the Knights of Columbus and other national Catholic bodies in helping to preserve this shrine.

Porta Coeli, or Santo Domingo church, was constructed in 1535 by the Dominican Fathers. It was the second place of worship erected in the new continent, the first having been St. John the Baptist church at Caparra, the first town built in Porto Rico, in 1511 and no longer standing.

Court Saves Tradition of Swearing Dragoon

Vienna.—An attempt to curtail the immemorial prerogative of sergeant majors in the matter of strong language has come to an end with the acquittal of a warrant officer of the Austrian Dragoons.

The sergeant major was charged with casting reflections on the honor of his men by calling them "a gang of thieves and a pack of rogues." He was provoked by the disappearance of a new pair of riding breeches, which he suspected had been taken by one of his troopers.

The finding of the court was that he had used the words only in a "pick-wickian" or parade-ground sense in a moment of justifiable indignation.

Pet Alligator Returns After a Long Absence

Framingham, Mass.—A baby alligator was sent to Philip O'Brien from St. Petersburg, Fla., by his grandfather.

It was named Alley Oop. For six months, Philip and his young friends fed the alligator hamburger with a pair of tweezers. Then Alley Oop disappeared.

Four months later Philip's mother heard strange sounds at her front door. It was Alley Oop, who, it might be added, had grown several inches longer.

Alley's whereabouts for those four months is still a mystery.

Joan of Arc Turned Twain to Literature

Indianapolis.—The life story of Joan of Arc determined the literary career of Mark Twain, according to Lyman Beecher Stone, former publisher of the famed author.

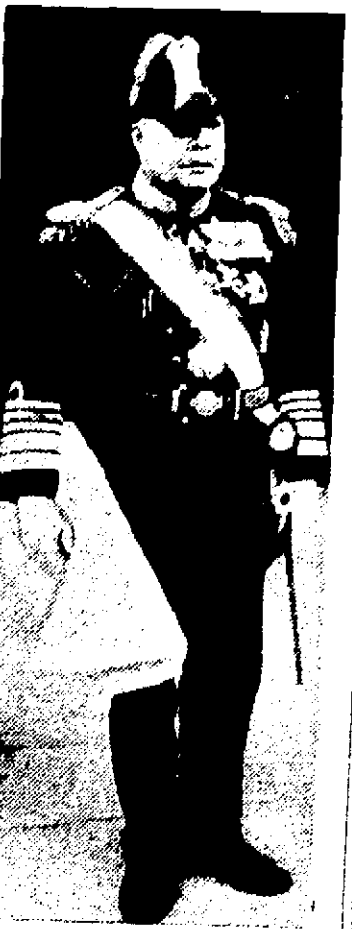

A term page from the book, "The Life of Joan of Arc," flew into the path of Twain when he was twelve years old and lived in Hannibal, Mo., and Stone.

Twain searched for some time before he discovered a friend who procured a book on the life of the saint.

Rebels Surrender In Tokyo After Pact

Okada, whom they assassinated in their sudden uprising Wednesday before dawn.

Loyal army forces ruled the Imperial capital under martial law, and warships of the Imperial navy steamed into positions to help enforce public order.

The second fleet, in command of Vice-Admiral Viscount Takayoshi Kato, arrived at Osaka Bay, on the southern end of the main island. The first fleet was expected to arrive tonight at the Yokosuka Naval Base, at the mouth of Tokyo Bay.

Simple Rites For Okada

A brief announcement disclosed that the late Premier Okada was buried with simple rites, conducted by two of his secretaries, and with no distinguished persons present.

The headquarters of General Kashi's forces announced that units of the first army division normally stationed outside Tokyo, arrived in the capital to join the command of the Tokyo garrison, to assist in enforcing martial law.

"The Tokyo peaceful situation is unchanged," the garrison headquarters announced, but at the same time drastic restrictions on rights of assembly were imposed.

Newspapers and periodicals were forbidden to publish anything deemed detrimental to public peace and order.

The paralyzing effect of the startling military uprising prevailed through this second day of the crisis.

The Stock Exchange in Tokyo and at the important seaport of Osaka, on the southern part of the main island, remained closed and the directors declined to say when they might reopen.

Financial leaders expressed confidence, however, that Japan's exchange control law would prevent any flight of capital or a drastic recession in the value of the Yen.

The bank of Japan and other major banking institutions, which closed yesterday, reopened today.

Expresses Condolences

Ambassador Grew of the United States visited the foreign office today and conveyed the condolences of the Washington government to Japan over the assassination of Premier Okada. Finance Minister Korekio Takahashi, Admiral Makoto Saito, Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal, and Gen. Jotaro Watanabe, Director of Military Education.

Later the American envoy visited the homes of the victims and expressed his condolences directly to the families.

The Viscountess Saito received the ambassador with her hand bandaged as the result of a gunshot wound.

The Viscount and Viscountess had been dinner guests of Grew in the American Embassy a few hours before the assassinations.

WICKS RENEWS HIS ATTACKS ON ROOSEVELT

Albany, Feb. 27 (Special).—Senator Arthur H. Wicks, commenting on the action against Gen. Johnson Hagood who spoke publicly of WPA funds as "stage money," asserted:

"Now we'll find out if President Roosevelt can use the 'stage money' to build his platform next fall."

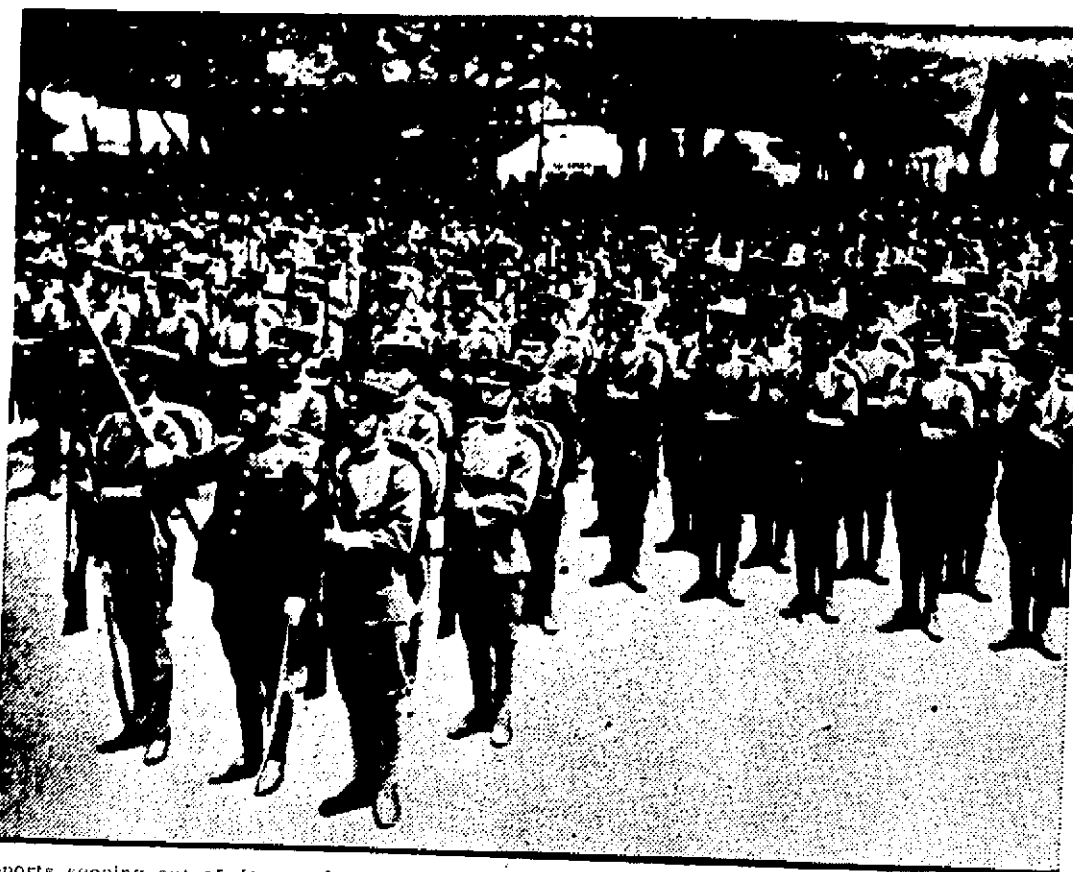

Wicks is known as the Albany capitalist as an arch foe of the President both in his present high executive position and was a constant opponent while Roosevelt was governor of the state.

May Have Found Them

Burlington, Vt., Feb. 27 (AP).—A Burlington aviator reported today he believed three New York State Troopers had found the body of Emil Duen, 34, of Keosauqua, N. Y., on the ice of Lake Champlain.

The pilot said he saw the troopers huddled over a body while on a flight over the lake. The pilot said he was unable to land because of water on the ice. Duen was reported missing after attempting to walk across the lake from Keosauqua to a small island Monday night. Duen's companion, Charles Ackley, reached shore.

Trotsky Says Soviet Critics Suffer Many Unnecessary Abuses

By Leon Trotsky, former commissar of war in the U. S. S. R., now living in exile in Norway.

(A statement to the Associated Press)

Honfoss, Norway, (AP).—During recent months and weeks I have received extremely important news, from authentic sources, relative to the terrible regime against political prisoners whose fidelity towards the Soviet Union is beyond doubt and whose only "crime" is that of criticizing the ruling Bureaucracy.

Friends have requested me by cable to let them know the truth of this matter.

A short time ago, for example, Doctor Anton Ciliga, former leader of the Yugoslavian Communist party, arrived from the Soviet Union where he spent more than five years in prison and exile as punishment for his critical attitude towards the leadership of the Comintern.

In order to force his expulsion from the country, Ciliga began a hunger strike. He was then fed forcibly, and prevented from committing suicide. Thousands of expelled members of the ruling party are in similar circumstances, because they protested against the conditions of growing inequality, introduction of army-officer titles, dissipation and autocracy.

Accurate and absolute objective information by Ciliga, Tarov, and others prove increasing antagonism between the Bureaucracy and the developing population. The Bureaucracy is compelled to have recourse to the sharpest repressions, not in the interests of the Soviet state, but of its own self-preservation.

It is indisputable that enemies of the Soviet Union and of its friendly relations with the United States, make use of such information for their own purposes. But the way to avoid such misuse is not to conceal the facts of the Bureaucracy crime, but to put an end to the crimes themselves.

Delightful Musicales At Fair St. Church

A musicale of exceptional interest because of the fine program promised was given by members of the Musical Society of Kingston at the Fair Street Reformed Church last evening. On their arrival, the large audience was welcomed at the door by Miss Jane Mauterstock. The ushers were Miss Agatha Flick, Miss Margaret Howe, Miss Alberta Davis and Miss Frances Muller.

The society is to be especially congratulated upon the excellence of the program, which had been carefully and properly arranged with an artistic grouping of the different numbers, by Mrs. A. Noble Graham, chairman of the program committee. It was gratifying to have so many good organ numbers as well as the instrumental trio, contrasting with the vocal selections.

Finally the excellence of the entire musical performance shows what marked progress has been made by the Musical Society of Kingston since its first inception, making of it a most worthwhile musical nucleus for the entire city to work around.

Mrs. Henry Millonig graciously welcomed all present on behalf of the society and thanked the contributors of the church for the use of the auditorium.

Ella O. Ellings, organist of the church, opened the program with a number that admirably keyed the entire evening of music: "Meditation-Elegie," by Borowski. This number with its haunting themes and the following one, "In a Monastery Garden" by Keteby, were both delightful and added one more laurel leaf to Mrs. Ellings' wreath as an artistic organist.

There is a something about Rubenstein's "Kamennol Ostrow" that lends itself readily to many interesting arrangements. That for piano and organ as played last evening by Phyllis Brodhead at the piano and Beale Elison at the organ was particularly pleasing and effective one and called forth hearty and appreciative applause for the performance.

It is always a pleasure to hear Jeannette K. Mills sing and it was an especial pleasure to hear her last evening in "Connais-tu la Paye?" from "Mignon" by Ambrose Thomas, accompanied at the organ by Ella O. Ellings. Her singing of the number was artistic and sincere.

In spite of the fact that we are accustomed to so much piano music by Bach, after all the organ seems especially to belong to him. Florence W. Cuddeback played his incomparable "Air on G String" (for violin), accompanied at the organ by Mrs. Ellings and played it with fine musicianship.

At this point in the program, a vocal ensemble which included Margaret Howe, Josephine M. Dederick, Phyllis Brodhead, Elizabeth M. LeFevre, Carolyn Port, Edna F. Rignall, Carol Downer and Jeannette K. Mills, with Eva Clinton conducting, sang a group of contrasting numbers, with Beale Elison at the piano. There was a lovely tonality throughout and the group showed a keen appreciation of the spirit of each song. They first sang "Cherubim Song" (Russian Liturgy) with its well known and dignified melody by Bortniansky and sang it well. Another very enjoyable number was "Lullaby" (Plantation) by Wild.

The last song of the group was the thrilling "Hymn to the Sun" by Mozart, sung with appreciation of its splendor.

Lucinda Merritt played a group of three organ selections, each in marked contrast to the other. First, she played "Prelude" by Frank, a brilliant composition, and followed it with an organ arrangement of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song." Her third number was "Reverie" by Dickinson. Throughout the entire program there was a very gratifying exhibition of real organ technique on the part of the organists and Miss Merritt did some particularly smooth pedaling in her first number. She was given very hearty applause.

Perhaps the outstanding number of the evening was the presentation of Gounod's pleadingly religious "O Divine Redeemer," sung by Ethel Knapp Wood with Ella O. Ellings at the organ, Ethel Mauterstock at the piano and Florence Cuddeback playing a violin obligato. Such an arrangement was very ambitious, but it was remarkably well performed. Mrs. Wood's singing being inspiring and artistic.

Another innovation that was remarkably pleasing was that of several numbers played by an instrumental trio composed of Eva Clinton, fute and violin; Mary Gray Legg, fute and Edna F. Rignall at the organ.

Throughout the entire group the ensemble was excellent, not an easy feat to accomplish with the organist unable to see the other two instruments. The selections were "The Swan" (fute, cello, organ) by Saint-Saens; "Romance" (violin, cello, organ) by Debussy; "Andante Religioso" (violin, cello, organ) by Thorne and "Serenade" (violin, cello, organ) by Plerne, with the last perhaps the best.

This fine program which had been prepared with such care and in such a laudable spirit of introducing something new and fine into the music of the city, came to a splendid climax and closed with the playing of "Fantasie" by Demarest and an excellent arrangement of "Meditation" from "Thais" for piano and organ, given fine performance by Cowley Tremper at the piano and Lella Reynolds Becker at the organ.

It called forth enthusiastic applause and many in the audience remained to add their personal congratulations, so well earned, to the members of the Musical Society of Kingston.

It was an evening of musical pioneering in our city to give such a program with home talent, and like all sincere pioneering in a good cause it was a very real success, and a prophecy of genuine leadership in music in the future.

The smallness of the audience, even though there was no admission charged, showed beyond the peradventure of a doubt, the dire need of more such pioneering, for the sake of the best in music in our community. The pleasure and educational value of this organization is great beyond any present seeming and sincerest congratulations are in order.

ARMY ORDER STIRS CONGRESS

A bitter dispute broke out in congress over the removal of Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood (shown testifying before a house committee) from his command after his criticism of WPA expenditures. Representative Blanton (inset, upper left) said he would place the matter before the President and produced a letter from Gen. Martin Craig (center, below), army chief of staff, giving officers permission to speak "frankly." But Senator Robinson (lower right), majority leader, said army officers should confine their remarks to military matters. Senator Hastings (lower left) termed the removal an act of "terrorism." Urge Passage of Brownell Bill

Albany, Feb. 27 (Special).—"For several years the cotton garment industry in the Hudson Valley from Glens Falls to New York city has been fighting a losing battle in competition with adjoining states and southern states due to the excessive costs of doing business in New York state," declared R. Smith Payne, vice president of the Cluett, Peabody, & Co., of Troy.

He joined with other leaders of industry urging passage of the Brownell bill at a public hearing yesterday which would authorize an other investigation of unemployment conditions within the state, and get at the roots of the matter," as expressed by Speaker Irving M. Lee, also in attendance yesterday, who has been championing the bill for several weeks.

"At the present time," Payne told the public relief and welfare committee, headed by James J. Wadsworth of Livingston county, "in the cotton garment industry in the Hudson Valley from Glens Falls to New York city we are competing on a basic 41-cent hour rate with a basic 30-cent rate in Pennsylvania."

Payne termed the unemployment insurance bill in its present form was "most impractical."

Prof. H. E. Wilcox, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, has been made an honorary member of the Royal Asiatic Society of Great Britain for his work in Egyptology.

Dog Owners Asked To Protect Deer

Due to the severe winter weather of the past six weeks, deer are in a somewhat weakened condition. At the present time the snow is deep in the deer sections of the county and there is real danger of a great many deer being killed by dogs allowed to stray away or run at large. The owner of dogs or persons harboring dogs situated in sections inhabited by deer can be a great help to save the deer by keeping their dogs tied up for the next two months. The Conservation Law prohibits a dog running at large in the Catskill Park unaccompanied by the owner, and a violation of this nature calls for a penalty of $100 on conviction.

Steel, non-ferrous metals and rails exhibited the most strength, but utilities, motors, merchandising issues, aircrafts and many industrial specialties exhibited strength.

U. S. Steel gained more than 2 points and other steels were up better than a point.

National Lead was 4 1/4 points better at 290 on one time on top of the 27 1/2 point rise yesterday, and increases of more than one were made by St. Joseph Lead, Anaconda Copper and American Smelting.

Rail gainers included Santa Fe, Great Northern Preferred, Northern Pacific and New York Central.

Chrysler was up around 2, and General Motors and Packard advanced fractions. Western Union bettered 2, and Consolidated Gas, American Telephone and North American improved.

Other firm spots included Montgomery Ward, Sears, Westinghouse Electric, Douglas Aircraft, Allied Chemical and Johns-Manville.

Hoffman Questions
Perone's Identification Of Bruno Hauptmann

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 27 (AP)—Governor Hoffman said today Joseph Perone, an identification witness against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, had told state police he saw Dr. John P. Condon talking to a man resembling the one who hired him to deliver a Lindbergh ransom note to the Bronx educator.

Perone delivered the note to Condon the night of March 12, 1932, a man in Gun Hill Road, the Bronx, gave it to him. It contained instructions to Condon how to make contact with the kidnaper.

At Hauptmann's trial Perone said the man who gave him the note was Hauptmann.

The statement cited by the governor was signed by Detective Claude Patterson and Sergeant A. Zapolsky, of the state police.

"Perone," it said, "stated that a few days after he attended the Bronx county grand jury he had taken a passenger to City Island and there had observed Dr. Condon talking to a man whom he thought was the man that gave him the note."

The governor made his announcement almost at the moment Attorney General David T. Wilentz, Hauptmann's chief prosecutor, was saying at his Perth Amboy home he would make "no move at all" to combat the governor's renewed attacks on the evidence against Hauptmann.

The governor flatly questioned Perone's identification of Hauptmann.

Tallest Dam, Conqueror Of The Colorado,
Stands Guard Against Floods, Drouth

Uncle Sam's $115,000,000 Investment In Concrete

Boulder City, Nev. (AP)—Engineering skill and 4,364,903 cubic yards of concrete have harnessed the rebellious Colorado river and given the world its tallest dam.

Completion of giant Boulder dam more than two years before the construction deadline, and its acceptance by the federal government (on March 1) ends an American epic supreme in its immensity and romance of execution.

Almost 400 years after Hernando de Alarcon, acting under Coronado's orders, discovered and explored the lower Colorado river, American ingenuity is credited with making the rich lands of the Imperial valley safe for future generations.

Located about 25 miles southeast of Las Vegas, Nevada, in the upper Black Canyon, Boulder dam is 727 feet high and by far the tallest dam in the world. The famous Sautet dam in France rises only 446 feet.

Cost $115,000,000.

Approximately $115,000,000 was spent in construction of Boulder dam. More than 4,364,903 cubic yards of concrete went into the dam and power house.

Boulder dam's mission may be summarized as follows:

1. To provide flood control.

2. To furnish an adequate supply for irrigation and domestic use.

3. To provide silt control.

4. To improve navigation on the river below Black Canyon.

5. To create a new recreational area.

6. To permit the generation of power, the sale of which will repay the cost of the project.

Boulder dam was authorized in 1928, when both Houses of Congress passed and President Coolidge signed the Boulder Canyon Project Act.

Began in 1931.

Work was started March 11, 1931. The first concrete was poured June 6, 1933. The storage of water commenced on February 1, 1935, and the last concrete placed in the dam on May 29 of the same year.

More than a year ago, although work was not yet completed, the gates of the diversion tunnels were closed to catch and store the flood waters in Lake Mead, behind the dam, to prevent a disastrous flood and later to prevent a drouth in the irrigated valleys along the lower Colorado, where crop losses in 1934 totaled $10,000,000.

Lake Mead, extending upstream from Boulder for 115 miles, has a surface area of 227 square miles. It is the largest artificial body of water in the world.

Power is Secondary.

Although the generation of power at Boulder dam is only incidental to the primary purposes of controlling floods and storing water during periods of high discharge to be released during periods of low flow, returns from sale of power are expected to repay the most of the project. The federal government will not sell the power generated at Boulder dam, but will dispose of the falling water.

Ships Built of Mahogany

During the Nineteenth century, and before, some of the finest English ships were constructed almost entirely of mahogany. One of the reasons for this preference lay in the fact that this wood was about 15 per cent lighter on the average than a corresponding cubical amount of oak or other woods. Another was mahogany's reputation for strength and durability.

Among numerous vessels built wholly or partially from mahogany during the Nineteenth century were the Dart, constructed in London by T. Potts in 1819; the Eliza, brigantine of 180 tons, built in 1818 at Honduras from mahogany cut in the vicinity, and the steam packet Comet, built in Woolwich by Oliver Lloyd in 1823.

Kendalls Score Victory Over Coeymans Club by 30-26 Tally

Eddie Coughlin's Kendalls defeated the Coeymans Faculty Five, 30-26, Wednesday in one of the best preliminary games seen at the Municipal Auditorium this season. Previous to last night the visitors had won 16 straight games.

The Teachers tried to make a brilliant finish and partially accomplished their goal, but did not shove in enough baskets to come within more than four points of the Olin's tally. The rally brought the visitors up considerably, though they were behind 26-10 at the intermission.

Featured scorers for the Kendalls were Cowboy Every, center, with eight points, and Chips Rhymer, forward, with six. Pitkin with 10 and Brown and Kunz with six did the best shooting for the Coeymans club. Pitkin and Kunz are ex-State Leaguers.

Friendly Indian Basketball Results

Wednesday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A., two games of basketball were played in the Friendly Indian Basketball League, the Pontiacs swamping the Navajoes by a score of 13-4 and the Sioux scalping the Mohicans by a count of 10-7.

In the Pontiac-Navajoe fray the Pontiacs got off to an early lead and continually increased their lead until the final whistle. Ken Hornbeck and Dick O'Toole led in the scalping with seven and four points respectively. In the Sioux-Mohican contest, the Mohicans played with only four men put up a game fight but were finally subdued by their more superior opponents.

Fritz Storms put up a spectacular performance against the winners, scoring his team's entire seven points.

There are only two more weeks of competition in the league. As it stands now the Sioux appear to be the coming champions. To lose out they would have to lose both of their next games and the Pontiacs, their nearest competitor, would have to win both of their games. If this should happen the result would be a tie for the championship between the Sioux and the Pontiacs.

Morgenweck to Keep His Team Together

Their exhibition last night against the Jersey Reds moved Frank Morgenweck to decide on keeping his team together for the balance of the American Basketball League season. He'll retain Tiny Hearn, center man, and keep Frank Shimek, the two players about whom there has been much ado because "Pop" said they played "inferior ball."

These two cagers, who were given chance after chance, because Morgenweck regretted getting rid of them, made good and then went into slumps again, put up a whole of an exhibition at the Auditorium where a crowd of fans cheered them last night for their part in the battle that sent the Jersey Reds down to defeat by 35-24.

Shimek tossed in five field baskets for 10 points, besides working well in the team play, and Hearn put up a sterling show in the passing game and moving around to get possession of the ball. Tiny neatly grabbed the ball off the backboard many times. He did a good job at outjumping Entrupp, his rival, too.

Stretch Pelkington, signed to replace Hearn, was in the game for two minutes of the last period. He'll remain with Kingston although Tiny will be in the starting lineup for the remainder of the season.

The Old Guardsmen of Baseball Pep Up at the Magic Touch of Spring

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 27 (AP)—Three irreplaceables, Babe Ruth, Walter Johnson and Rabbit Maranville, are conspicuously missing as the major league clubs gather along the training trails from San Juan to Santa Catalina but the first few touches of spring meanwhile have aroused comeback hopes among the old guardsmen of baseball.

Mingling with the dulcet tones of Charley Grimm's banjo is talk of a return to active duty by the Chicago manager. It may be the climate but Grimm says he is getting in shape to play first base if and when young Phil Cavarretta, who won the regular slip or a recurrence of stomach trouble that bothered him before.

Charles (Chick) Hafey, who dropped out of the game a year ago because of illness and retired to his California farm, also has spring fever. The one-time king of National League batsmen is only 33 years old and thinks he can return to competition. He prefers to try his luck in the coast league, however, before seeking a major league job again.

Much of the Giants' pitching hopes for this year rest upon the comeback ability of Freddy Fitzsimmons, a burly knuckleballer, and Fred (Tito) Marberry, the former king of American League relief pitchers who is back on the firing line after a tour of umpiring duty.

The comeback of Charley Gelbert, who almost lost a foot in a hunting accident three years ago, appears convinced enough to solve the Cardinals' infield problem this year. Gelbert is expected to win the regular job at third base, now that Pepper Martin has been shifted to the outfield.

The pirates have lost Lloyd Waner for the early stages of the season but their chances will soar if Manager Harlow Traynor recovers from an ailing throwing arm sufficiently to take his old stand at third base.

The Cubs hope that the signs of Chuck Klein's come-back as a clean-up clouter, manifest in the last few games of the 1935 World Series, will develop full bloom.

Surroundings and the stimulus of being shifted to pennant-holding or pennant-contending outfits are depended upon to bring about the batting come-backs on the part of two others who have held the hitting heights—Al Simmons, now with the Tigers, and Heinie Manush of the Red Sox.

Lakeland, Fla.—Rudy York, rookie candidate for Hank Greenberg's first base job with the Tigers, may be shifted to the outfield to take advantage of his hitting. In the Texas League last year York hit 22 homers, drove in 117 runs and earned the designation as the league's most valuable player.

San Juan, P. R.—Cincinnati Red Sox indicate Calvin Chapman is a sure bet to start the season as an outfield regular.

Charlie Fressen plans to use Johnson, Wisner and Cook in turn on the mound in today's exhibition game at Ponce.

Sarasota, Fla.—Herb Pennock, Red Sox pitching coach, paints a gloomy picture of the pitcher possibilities of Stewart (Doc) Flowers, who dropped a try-medical course at Gettysburg College to join the team last July. Pennock says Flowers should develop into a regular pitcher this season. Flowers celebrated his 21st birthday on route here yesterday.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Bill McKechnie, Boston Red Sox manager, is worrying anxiously over whether the slot machines will vie with the team's cash for the daily food allotment of the players, particularly some of the rookies. There's no restaurant run in conjunction with the team's hotel.

Cities Service Cagers Take Game From Jersey Reds, 35-24

Frank Morgenweck's Cities Service team moved out of its lethargic state Wednesday at the Municipal Auditorium, trimming the Jersey Reds, who held top berth in the American Basketball League standing, by the score of 35-24. Despite Kingston's slump, and talk about a slim attendance, there was a goodly crowd to watch the Gasoliners' come through to win by 11 points.

Featured scorers for the Morgenweck brigade were Captain Carlisle Husta with 13 points and Frank Shimek with 10, but team play in general was better last night than it had been in many a moon, proving the locals can play class A ball if they put their minds down to it.

Tiny Hearn, who almost got the gate a week ago because he played what Morgenweck termed inferior ball, was in every play last night, mixing it up and "ashing out" the ball. Once Hearn shot from near the center of the court, followed up and was at the basket almost as quickly as the cakifin, and away again to chase the Red who had caught the sphere when it bounced off the glass backboard. As Tiny left the game with only two minutes left in the last period he was given a big hand. "Stretch" Pelkington relieved him just to give the fans a glimpse of how he looked in action, but the period was too short for him to show much.

"Shimek" Cheered! Shimek left the contest, too, about midway in the third frame, "giving way" to Hank Kuryka, and got a big hand as he went to the bench. "Atta Boy Frankie" were the cries instead of "take him out" as heard when the Jewels trimmed Kingston. "Shimek" was back in his regular form of last season against the Reds and pumped in some of the slickest long shots he ever tossed.

Willie "Bad Boy" Scritt did the star shooting for the Jerseyites, making six fields in the last two periods for 12 points. Most of Scritt's heaves were of the long variety and out, the cords without touching the hoop. Willie was not so rough as in his previous appearances at the Auditorium when he kayaked Corky Stanton and blackened his left eye. Stanton played a full game last night, making five points on two fields and one from the free throw line.

GOOD GARDENING

17. Sweet Corn

Only to those fortunate who have bigger than average gardens is sweet corn in the spring picture, but for these it's an institution. So, if you have a good-sized patch, here's how. Rows should be three feet apart and the individual plants 15 to 18 inches apart in drills and two and a half feet apart in hills. It takes a rich soil and planting shouldn't be attempted until the ground is well warmed up. A pint of seed will plant 400 to 500 feet of row. Thin out the stalks to three to a hill or to single stalks 15 to 18 inches apart in drills. The season for planting runs from late February in the deep south to early June in the far north. Tomorrow—Fence Rows.

The United States flag is the third oldest of the national standards of the world; older than the Union Jack of Great Britain or the tri-color of France. "Old Glory" was first authorized by Congress June 14, 1777. This date is now celebrated throughout the nation by the observation of Flag Day.

Leningrad, U. S. S. R., Feb. 27 (AP)—Ivan Petrovitch Pavloff, the physiologist who became internationally famous for his "purely materialistic" theory of conditioned reflexes and for his research into the mental process of animals, died today of influenza, he was 86.

The son of a village priest, he argued that human life is based on reflexes or reactions of the nervous system to outside influences. This, the Soviet encyclopedia says, applies to "the highest nervous activity—formerly called the soul."

Pavloff won the Nobel prize in 1904 for his works on the salivary glands and digestion, and turned in later years to an intriguing mechanical theory of life.

It was his contention that all the acts of life are reflexes and just as mechanical as that of the baby who pulls its finger out of the fire.

To prove this theory he experimented for many years with dogs, monkeys, rabbits and other animals.

His Leningrad laboratory contained equipment for measuring the thoughts of animals, and intensity of their brain process and even their very wishes, hopes and disappointments.

Last year Pavloff expressed the belief that his remedies for mentally sick dogs would have a curative effect on humans.

Before the international congress of physiologists, of which he was president, he said he had succeeded in setting up in dogs the same conditions of mental derangement as occur in humans and that in many cases, notably by the use of bromide, cured neuroses which had lasted for months.
